(FRANKFORT, Ky.) -- Reecie Stagnolia, vice president of Kentucky Adult Education, will participate in an invitation-only “Conversation on the Future of Adult Literacy” Wednesday, June 8 in Washington, D.C.

Hosted by the Barbara Bush Foundation for Family Literacy, the event will be a gathering of entrepreneurs, investors, technology leaders, futurists, visionaries and policy makers.

The purpose of the national conversation is to explore revolutionary ways to boldly advance adult literacy and education through four sectors--technology, funding innovations, policy and workforce.

Kentucky Adult Education is a unit of the Kentucky Council on Postsecondary Education.
